

JUST ONE DAY...

Hundreds of meals are served each day across SA to people in crisis

Community services provide families and carers with support

Showers and other basic human comforts are provided by community services across SA every day

Refugee and other multicultural community programs assist new Australians in all aspects of their lives

Relationship support services assist South Australians to build strong healthy partnerships

Community support keeps these women strong, and offers respite for their carers

Community services help people stay in their own homes

Counselling services help people cope and save lives, too

...WITHOUT

Disadvantage in South Australia remains largely invisible, and the incredible contribution of the community services sector goes unseen by the wider public in their day to day lives.

We want to imagine (and encourage others to imagine) the impact of a day without the myriad community-run services that help vulnerable and disadvantaged South Australians.

This project will provide a unique window not just to the strength of civil society, but also the extent of need in our community. The ultimate beneficiaries are the people who depend on these services.

The result of the project will not be another research report ...

Using competitions rather than contracts to inspire films, prose, and poetry, community service providers will engage with South Australians in creative and new ways, linking the voices and stories of those who use the services to the wider community.

The Just One Day Without project is unique. The output will be documented not in statistics but in human terms — in an innovative multimedia telling of people's stories and daily experiences.
